"Sinners will be boiled in a pot."

Monika Pormale once shared with me that, in my opinion, the fundamental principle of the world is "there is only one truth, the one we believe in." At the moment, one of the questions in my creative practice is "whom does the artist believe in?" Because faith gives and brings meaning. We are the co-authors of our destiny, we only forget it sometimes.

What motivates you to be a good person? Do you do well in fear of punishment? What truth do you believe in and allow you to manage your life?

Let there be LIGHT.

1. Icon of Saint Mom Aija

Favorite portrait in unfavourite times. This painting is a tribute to my mother Aija, who has taught me strong character, love, and willpower in the struggle against the most difficult times. Her self-denial has brought me light. "Mom, I love you!"

2. Don't turn away from me, Being

3. Please!

4. Satan, Fuck Off

5. You Won't Be Able to Bullshit God

6. I Want Suffering to End
